MISSION/VISION

Philippine Heart Center Operating Room under Specialized Care Division will continue to perform efficient and effective scientific cardiovascular perioperative care globally competitive with honest surgical conscience to patients undergoing surgical intervention.
PHILOSOPHY

Operating room nursing team owes to the surgical patient the best care they have to give. Handling with love and care is the essence of nursing, but only when we learn how to know and love God, can we share to others.

That perioperative nursing is a caring art based on the creative application of knowledge, skills and interpersonal competencies. The ultimate goal of such is the provision of quality individual patient care since it is the right of surgical patient to receive the highest quality of nursing care according to his needs.

We believe that the practice of perioperative nursing correlates with the pre, intra and post-operative patient care and gives a thorough knowledge and understanding of the process. That nursing activities are directed towards providing a continuity of care to assist the patient at this time of surgical intervention.

We believe that perioperative nurses must be ethical, responsible and accountable for quality patient care. The nurses engaged in the perioperative nursing practice provide or facilitates direct quality care to surgical patients.

That perioperative nurses use substantial knowledge, judgment and skills based on the principles of physical, biological, physiological, behavioral, social and nursing science. We believe that standards of nursing practice, interdisciplinary collaboration and appropriate resource utilization enhance perioperative nursing practice.
